No School Donation Days

Persons who are not cognizant of the situation may misinterpret the action of the East Liverpool district board of education in "receiving and filing" the request of the Red Cross chapter for permission to collect foodstuffs in the public schools for the relief of the families of West Point coal miners who are said to be facing a hard fight to provide food and clothing for their children because of more than a year's idleness. The mines suspended operations three months before the strike was called on April 1.

Lack of sympathy with the relief movement was not responsible for the rejection of the Red Cross appeal. School board members, while they made no statement explaining their stand, are believed to have deemed it advisable to frown upon all donation days. This attitude is prompted, it is said, by the fact that the schools have been overworked in appeals. All the causes have been worthy, but the board of education, it is assumed, feels that the line should be drawn. And it happened that the decision had to be taken on the request for a Miners' relief day.

This action, however, should not, and was not intended, to retard the relief movement. For it is taken for granted that contributions received through schools would be deductions from those ordinarily made through other channels which have been established by the Red Cross and National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, in charge of the East Liverpool district movement.

The five-day campaign launched today, in which appeals have been made through the press and will be repeated in the churches tomorrow, should more than meet the needs of West Point and other Madison township zones. Receiving stations have been opened in the Central, Northside and East End fire stations, First Baptist church, West Fifth street and Boy Scout headquarters, Market street. Foodstuffs should be sent to these places.

The Farm Exodus

Three million people have left American farms since 1920. More than 640,000 flocked to the cities and sought other means of livelihood in 1926. Last year's figures, not available yet, may be even larger.

Prof. William E. Todd of the University of Chicago is greatly alarmed by this. He foresees a very dark future for American agriculture, with our farmers reduced to peasantries.

That doesn't necessarily follow. The opposite may prove true. This exodus from the farms may mean the salvation of the remaining farmers and the salvation of agriculture.

Economic law is working naturally and effectively. There are too many farmers on the farms. Fewer can produce the necessary food. Millions going into industry will multiply and cheapen manufactured goods, thereby lowering farm living costs. Producing less food, farmers will get higher prices, and their money will not have to be divided among so many.

This may sound like a hard, unsympathetic interpretation. But it is a logical one. And logic usually works out better than sentiment. The present situation is hard on farmers now, but is preparing the way for a better situation.

Nature usually knows what she is about, in economics as well as in other fields. Action and reaction are equal. Prosperity tides wash back and forth, between city and country. The city has been having its inning lately. The country will get its inning, even if it seems unduly delayed.

One of our foremost business critics has been saying, with reason, that this is a good time to buy farm land.

Panama Canal Adequate

Much recent discussion of the Panama canal has assumed that the waterway was nearing its capacity and the Nicaragua canal would have to be built soon to take care of the traffic. Those who talk in this way must have overlooked facts submitted last fall to the American Society of Engineers by John F. Stephens. He is the distinguished engineer who preceded Gen. Goethals on the Panama canal job, and organized the excavation work there.

He gives illuminating comparative statistics. The Panama canal has just about the same facilities as the Soo canal, between Lake Superior and Lake Huron, which carries the greatest tonnage in the world.

The Soo canal passed, in 1926, an average of 90 vessels a day. It is ice-bound four months a year. If it could work 12 months in the year, as the Panama canal does, at this rate it would pass 32,860 vessels, or about 134,000,000 tons.

The Panama canal in the same year, which was a busy and prosperous year, passed only 26,836,000 tons. Apparently it could handle four or five times that much.

The greatest number of transits at Panama in one month was in March of last year, when it passed 611 ships. That, says Mr. Stephens, is not over 40 per cent of its capacity, operating only by day.

The capacity can be increased at any time, he points out, by operating day and night, by adding a third set of locks to the present set, and perhaps building a new reservoir for water supply.

The Panama canal, he concludes, should serve our purposes adequately for 50 years more. That may ease many minds about the need of spending another huge sum right away for canal facilities in Nicaragua.

"Allies May Demand Right to Supervise German Borrowing." Good idea. Then let Germany supervise Allies' borrowing. Then maybe we can keep some of our money at home.

About this time of year many a householder could heat his house from the exhaust of the family bus—and probably would, if he'd never heard of carbon monoxide.

This nation uses up so much political energy electing men to office that it hasn't much left to get things done after they're elected.

Winter shouldn't be a series of warm and cold waves. The Weather Bureau ought to do something to steady it.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—This month marks the beginning of the primary battle for delegates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions. It opens February 10 in Illinois and will be carried on until June 5, one week before the Republican National convention in Kansas City, when the Florida delegates will be selected.

The first month of this period will be devoted to what might be termed preliminary skirmishes as no national delegates will actually be elected until the New Hampshire primary is held March 13. On February 10 nominating petitions for presidential candidates will be filed in Illinois and ten days later those persons who seek to be district delegates to national conventions must file their candidacies for election at the primary which will be held April 10.

The second skirmish, and the first one of prospective significance, comes on February 24 when candidates for president and for national delegates must file declarations of candidacy in Ohio. This will reveal whether Senator Frank B. Willis is to have an open fight for the Republican delegation from one or more of the other presidential aspirants.

Similarly, with the Democrats, it will be revealed whether Ohio is to present a favorite son in the person of former Senator Atlee Pomerene, or possibly Governor Donahue, without a fight's being made for the state's delegation by outside candidates.

February 24 is important also because on that date New Hampshire candidates for national delegate must file nomination papers in which they may declare their presidential choice.

The month of March will witness far greater activity. On the first day of the month candidates for president and for national delegate will file declarations in North Dakota and in Michigan presidential candidates will result. One Wellsville family chops up furniture for fuel.

Miss Lelia Edith Leyon of Cincinnati and John Henry Langley were married at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Langley on Seventh street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mountford of Walnut street announce the birth of a daughter.

S. E. Stricklin, superintendent of the new pottery now being built at Cameron, W. Va., has secured a contract by which his company is to furnish the municipality with 50 arc lights for the streets and the business houses with several thousand incandescent lamps.

One of New York's most prominent bankers and philanthropists, for instance, wears a horseshoe nail rheumatism ring. It is a relic of the days when he lived in an illiterate mountainous country. He laughs at the superstition, but continues to wear the ring on a finger that assists in much coupon clipping, ha, ha.

Of course, everybody cannot be a college professor, but there are many men who believe a lot of nonsense and superstition who seem to get along fairly well, contributing a little more to the gross human happiness than even some college professors. If that sounds catty, that is the intention.

One of New York's most prominent bankers and philanthropists, for instance, wears a horseshoe nail rheumatism ring. It is a relic of the days when he lived in an illiterate mountainous country. He laughs at the superstition, but continues to wear the ring on a finger that assists in much coupon clipping, ha, ha.

And some of the shrewdest financiers in Wall Street refuse to transact portentious deals on Friday. A man who has given the world the finest art of the theatre will, if he meets a cross-eyed person, sneak off of some place and spit through his fingers.

A great anthropologist — who has written innumerable text books — was badgered by a friend to walk under a ladder for a hundred-dollar bill, and refused. Not even the great halls of learning could educate him out of a silly superstition.

Indeed, it would seem the greater the man the more likely he is to have some quirk that would rate his intelligence almost subnormal. Mental superiority is not salvaged from text books. America has rather definitely proved that men even in this age can be successful without education at all. And perhaps do as much to make the world happy as college professors.

The purchase of a finger print system for use in the police department has been authorized by Safety Director Brokaw, and the outfit has been ordered by Chief of Police Hugh McDermott.

In South Dakota candidates for president and for delegate file declarations March 22, the primary election to be held May 22. March 24 is the last filing day for presidential candidates and delegates in California where the primary will be held May 1.

Nominating petitions will be filed for president and delegates in New Jersey on April 1. The primary election declaring the state choice for president and electing the national delegates will be held May 15. On April 2 the voters of Michigan will go to the polls to indicate their party choice for president, and the following day Wisconsin voters will do likewise and in addition elect national delegates.

Nebraska swings into action with a presidential preference primary and election of delegates on April 10. In Oregon, presidential candidates and delegates will file declarations on April 13 and the primary will be held May 18.

Maryland national delegates will be elected at the state convention, but they are bound by the result of the presidential preference primary which will be held May 7. Presidential aspirants must file declarations of candidacy in Maryland on April 21.

April 24 will be a momentous day because on that day preference primaries will be held and delegates selected in three big states—Massachusetts, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. These states will have an aggregate of 169 delegates in the Republican national convention.

In West Virginia presidential candidates and delegates will file declarations April 29 for a primary which will be held one month later. The same preliminary will take place in Florida on May 5 for a primary on June 5.

In all, the seventeen states in which presidential primaries will be held will have 499 delegates in the Republican national convention an' 43 less than that number in the Democratic convention. The difference is due to the fact that in their apportionment this year the Republicans give three additional delegates at-large to each state that cast its electoral vote, for Coolidge n' 1924.

Two states, Montana and North Carolina, have repealed their presidential primary laws since the 1924 conventions, and Illinois, New Jersey, and South Dakota have amended theirs.

So rapidly has demand mounted for the perfected Whippet, that four great plants—at Toledo, Elmira, Pontiac and Toronto—are taxed to capacity, and enlargement and expansion, to permit even greater production, are already under way. People continue to express amazement that cars of such remarkable quality and mechanical perfection can be offered at such low prices.

Here is true beauty—in color, lines, proportions and interiors. And here, too, are features which distinguish the finest American cars—low-slung full vision bodies, BIG 4-wheel brakes, gasoline tank at rear, full force-feed lubrication, silent timing chain, over-size balloon tires and snubbers and long semi-elliptic springs.

See this car—ride in it, and compare it with any other light car—for looks, for performance, for quality, for all-around desirability—in short, for value.

NEWSPAPER MEN STAY ON JOB AS FLAMES ENVELOP PLANT

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 4.—Traditions of the "newspaper shop" were upheld yesterday as fire surged about the plant of the Fall River Globe.

Even the lowly office boys stayed on the job along with men and women of the staff.

At one time the building caught fire. There was no apparatus available at the moment. Publisher Edward Gans, Managing Editor Alan J. Daniels, City Editor Frank Healy and others of the staff manned hoses along the walls and on the roof. When the fire in the Globe building was extinguished the work of getting out an "extra" was resumed. A photographer developed fire pictures in a dark room while two reporters kept the closet drenched with water. A curtain of water was thrown outside the composing room and the press room. The "extra" was issued on schedule.

BOY 14 HAS 64 "BABY HOLDUPS."

That he had committed 64 thefts from children in four weeks, was the confession made by a fourteen-year-old boy in Glasgow, Scotland, recently. He is said to have waited at store doors and when children came out with purchases he held them up and told them that the wrong change had been given them and that he had been sent to get the change back that the error might be righted. He then disappeared and used part of the money to gamble with adults.

Mechanical Hand Devised.

After years of study, James Smith, a Scotchman, has invented a mechanical hand that will help the crippled. He says that with it "people who have lost one or both hands will be able to compete in the industrial market with those fully equipped by nature." By using it, clerks will be able to write and laborers to use pick and shovel, he declares. The device is made of white metal, possesses fingers and thumb of spiral wire, and a "grip" is given by merely stretching the arm.

WHAT is called "a glaring shameful instance of anti-Semitism" is the sentence imposed upon Ludwig Hatvany, well known Hungarian author, whose only "crime" was criticism of Hungary's government, after the war.

Hatvany's sentence is seven years in prison and a $500,000 fine, which will wipe out the remains of his once large fortune.

Past middle life, broken in spirit, and impoverished, Hatvany may die in prison. His comfort will be the certainty that such a government cannot last.

He married Miss Elizabeth Webb, of Corydon, Warren county, Pa., on October 21, 1874.

Mr. Williams was active in the First Methodist Episcopal church and Sunday school. He was also a member of the Kiwanis club and East Liverpool Lodge No. 378, Odd Fellows. He was serving his second term as a member of the board of health. He was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce, serving on the industrial committee.

Besides his wife he is survived by one daughter Mrs. R. W. Hanes, Canton, and one son, George P. Williams, Salineville. He also leaves four brothers: William W., Miami, Fla.; Isaac N., Fredonia, N. Y.; Irvin N., Corydon, Pa., and Frank P., of this city. Two grand children and one great-grand child also survive.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the place to be announced later. The services will be in charge of Rev. Warren O. Hawkins, D.D., pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Friends may view the body Monday afternoon and evening.

Oil Man Released

for contempt and "appropriate proceedings."

This method was followed in the contempt proceedings against Harry F. Sinclair.

Stewart was released from the custody of the senate's sergeant-at-arms under $1,000 bond, which was immediately produced and posted, and a hearing on the writ was set for Tuesday.

Thus the oil magnate will have 72 hours of freedom at least before the senate can again "seize his body."

McGrain, his "keeper," waited at the court room only long enough to be formally served with the writ. Then he returned to the capitol to report to his chief, David Barry, who, in turn, will inform the senate that the prisoner was taken from his custody by the order of a court of the United States.

Unearths $800,000 in Bonds.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The senate's Teapot dome inquiry today unearthed the disposition of $800,000 of the Continental Trading company's $3,000,000 Liberty bond fund.

W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the board of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, told the public lands committee that James E. O'Neill, who since fled to Europe, had paid $800,000 of the bonds into the Prairie's treasury.

Fitzpatrick said O'Neill described the bonds as a part of the Continental company's "profits."

GERMAN POLICE KILLER NABBED AFTER ROBBERY

"Were-Wolf" Hein's Career Ends at Wuertemberg.

SIX-DAY CHASE

Fugitive Slays Three Men Before Career Ends.

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—The career of Johann Anton Hein, Germany's killer of policemen, ended today. He was captured at Wuertemberg by a posse of 5,000 police, soldiers and citizens.

Hein, nicknamed "The Were-Wolf," had fled a Thuringian post office and fled afoot and on a bicycle across Germany. In six days he covered 500 miles.

During his flight, Hein killed every policeman that approached him. He had killed three when captured.

The "Were-Wolf's" capture ended the greatest man-hunt in Germany since the war.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Unsettlement in the industrial stocks and high priced specialties, which was in evidence at Friday's close, reasserted itself in the first period today, and the trend of prices was downward. The railroad stocks lost ground under the weight of a fairly heavy outpouring of selling orders, accompanied by reports of a falling off in freight loadings in important sections of the country.

Beyond the known expansion in the steel and motor car trade, the week-end trade and business summaries had little of definite improvement to report, except that other departments of industry are expected to share in the increased business which will naturally result therefrom. The New York stock exchange reported a $12,000,000 decrease in January speculative borrowings, which contrasts with the $90,000,000 increase shown in the weekly reserve bank reports. The discrepancy evidently results from the inclusion of a good volume of bond loans in the reserve bank figures.

DYNAMITE BLAST NEAR OHIO MINE

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 4.—That no one was injured and no mining property was damaged when a half dozen sticks of dynamite were exploded by unknown persons alongside a road about 400 yards from the Lurie coal mine, near Athens, last night was the report officially received here today by Adjutant General Frank Henderson.

Major Arch. Thomas, of the Ohio National Guard, today submitted his report to Henderson covering an investigation he made relative to the explosion. Thomas stated that, accompanied by an official of the New York Central Coal company, which owns the Lurie mine, he visited the mining property within a half hour after the explosion. The guilty parties were not located.

County Cattle Found O. K. In State Test

Three-year Campaign for Place in Accredited List Proves Successful.

State and federal veterinary inspectors have completed a tuberculin test of cattle in Hancock county, and found only four animals infected.

The report of Mrs. R. C. Dickson, F. E. Johnson and C. T. Higginbottom, in charge, will place the county in the accredited list, climaxing a three-year campaign for this objective.

According to regulations of the United States department of agriculture, a county may be accredited when a complete test of the cattle shows less than one quarter of one percent of reactors. Herds condemned represent less than this average.

The recent test was the third for most of the county herds. During the winter of 1925-26 an inspector of the state department tested approximately 75 per cent of the cattle and condemned about 100 animals. Last year the county court co-operated with the state and federal agencies under the area plan and 44 reactors were found necessitating a complete retest.

Under the accredited area plan no further tests are necessary for three years except in herds found infected, as a permanent quarantine against importing any animals into the country except those with certificates showing they have passed the tuberculin test is in effect.

An exception is made for animals brought in under permit for immediate slaughter.

Cattle owners of the county may secure health certificates for animals which they want to send into other states without further tests by applying to the commissioner of agriculture.

My living outside the Church sets a bad example for men, women and little children. If everyone did so there would be no Church. I would not live in a place where there is no church. No one wants to bring up children in such a place. It is selfish and wrong for me to expect a blessing from Christ or the Church while I throw my influence against Him by refusing to be a member. SEEING JESUS

Sermonette by Rev. J. F. Dimit

John 12:21. Sir, we would see Jesus.

Jesus Christ is the greatest character in the world's history. Others have been great but Jesus is the greatest. He has been the center of the world's thought for over nineteen centuries. He is the pivotal point of history. All history converges and diverges in Jesus. Men of all classes have thought about Jesus, and with few exceptions, they have made him the pre-eminent figure of all history.

Jesus is the most powerful spiritual force that ever operated for good on and in humanity. He has created the typical virtues and moral ambitions of civilized man. He is the living God that has guided youth, enabled manhood, mellowed and beautified old age.

No historical condition can account for Jesus. He was not the product of the ages. Circumstances did not create him. He was both God and man. The Word was made flesh. Well did Paul say: "Without controversy, great is the mystery of godliness." God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory."

In the gospel we have given us a narrative of Jesus and his life. His life was perfect. No critic has ever found just reasons for criticism. His teachings have never been equaled by any sage or philosopher. His life was given in the interests of humanity. "He went about doing good." He

The Crossing of Lake Galilee

As the disciples were crossing Lake Galilee, after the feeding of the multitude, a violent storm came up and added its dangers to the hazards of the night. ~ ~

For nine hours they rowed against the storm and an agitated sea; and in the midst of the fury of the waves they saw a figure walking on the waters. They recognized the voice as they heard, "Be of good cheer. It is I; be not afraid." ~ ~ ~

But Simon Peter answered, "Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water." And Jesus answered, "Come." And Peter walked on the waters to the Lord.

They were soon all in the boat with the Master. This latest manifestation of His power had created a worship in them. They adored Him saying, "Of a truth art thou the son of God?" ~ ~

Has Your Back Given Out?

Backache May Be Due to Various Causes
But Often Warns of Sluggish Kidneys

Does every day find you lame, stiff and achy? Do you feel tired and drowsy—suffer nagging backache, headache and dizzy spells? Are the kidney secretions scanty, too frequent, or burning in passage?

Know, then, that these are often signs of improper kidney action. Sluggish kidneys allow acid poisons to remain in the blood and upset the whole system.

If your kidneys are acting sluggishly assist them with Doan's Pills. Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretion of the kidneys and thus aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Doan's are recommended the country over. Ask your neighbor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—If there is to be a third episode of the Dempsey-Tunney serial, and the betting seems to be that it can't be 7-10, even and out that it can't miss, it will be held as far as possible from the jurisdiction of the frowning fathers of New York boxing, the writer was informed today at Madison Square Garden, New York. It seems, to get the class A championship fight between Tunney and the Sharkey-Delaney-Heavy-Risko survivor in June in order to pander to political insistence that Rickard hold his next heavyweight championship in the town where he does his ordinary business.

Once this feature is accomplished at neither great expense nor gain, Rickard will look elsewhere for the big clean up with Dempsey and Tunney. It is up with Dempsey and Tunney.

Reverses Original Agreement.

This, if true, is just a reversal of his original compromise with Tunney, which called for the champion and Dempsey to make their killing as easily as possible so that Tunney could discharge an alleged obligation by boxing a second time in defense of his title, with Jim Mullen as the promoter. Dempsey, however, upset the sequence by declaring himself out of any fight that might be held as early as June or July.

If he stays out for good, as Rickard tried to intimate he would several days ago, Mullen may have the second fight for the asking, it appears. Without Dempsey, there just couldn't be any second fight, as far as Rickard sees it, and he has been quoted as saying privately that, in this case, he will be perfectly willing to let Mullen do the worrying about logical opponents and wholly illogical guarantees.

Speaking of these, there is a story around town that he has guaranteed Tunney $700,000 for the class A fight here, provided the champion loses. If Tunney wins it, he will receive only $450,000. There is no reason to suspect that Tunney will lose, so Rickard stands to win a tidy stake on a fight that will not draw more than 80,000 addicts.

Won't Be Expensive.

That is the reason it can be held in New York where the capacity of ball parks is limited in comparison with Soldier Field, Chicago, and the Sesqui stadium, Philadelphia. Rickard won't need those kind of accommodations for the first fight, which only will be a sort of practice putt, after all. Besides, he will be placating local influences and making it pay him well—unless Tunney loses, in which case Rickard will go into the chicken gumbo. He still will be able to get it back, however, if Dempsey lends himself to the enterprise in a place where "tops" are high and seats are many.

If this happens, I am afraid James Mullen will be chosen bag-holder by acclamation. Tunney started the two-fight thing with James in mind, but, then, there is no law to prevent him from finishing it with James in hock. Bread cast upon the waters sometimes returns after many days in the form of paving blocks.

CHICAGO WINS SWIMMING MEET

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—University of Chicago today boasted a 36-to-33 victory over Indiana in the dual Big Ten swimming meet, held last night at Bartlett gymnasium. The Maroons won six places out of the eight events, but the Hoosiers scored heavily by finishing several races in second and third place. Rittenhouse starred for Chicago.

WALSH TO HELP SOX PITCHERS

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—Ed Walsh, former star pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, has been signed by that organization to assist Manager Ray Schalk in the development of young pitching talent, it was announced today. The White Sox plan to sign several promising college hurlers and turn them over to the veteran Walsh, who will teach them the "tricks of the trade."

DELANEY TUNE-UP PROGRAM IS CUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Jack Delaney's "tuning up" process for his heavyweight elimination bout with Tom Heeney on March first has been curtailed at the urgent request of Tex Rickard and instead of threeights "under his belt" before he meets the New Zealand entry, he will have only one.

Joe Jacobs had made three matches for Delaney. The Bridgeport admiral was to have gone to bat with the ancient Battling Levinsky in Pittsburgh next Monday night but Levinsky bowed out a few days ago. Delaney boxes Leo Gates in Rochester on February 13. He had intended to take on Larry Gaines, Canadian light heavyweight champion, in Toronto on February 20, but the Toronto date is too close to the big garden fight to suit Rickard.

Rickard fears that Delaney might not make an impressive showing against Gaines or might injure his hands.

Incidentally the promoter convinced Jacobs he would be foolish to take the Toronto gamble for a few thousand dollars. Delaney's end with Heeney should run close to $50,000 to say nothing of his great opportunity to be named as Tunney's opponent in June.

Early in the struggle, however, Midland assumed the lead which they maintained during the entire game. Although the Maroon passers threatened to take the lead several times, Coach Lomond's protégés held them down with a brand of ball not offered Midland fans before this season by the Steel five. Throughout the game, Midland outpointed Beaver and in the final came to hold the Beavers scoreless, while they slopped four field goals through the straps.

BROADWAY

A Thrilling Story of the Night Clubs
By Phillip Dunning and George Abbott.

Steve's long fingers were twitching just a bit, now, while Scar's were playing a tattoo on the legs of his trousers. "And supposing I say that I'll sell any damn place I can get away with it?" Crandall said.

Through tight lips, blue-gray, Scar replied. "Then I'm warning you that it's dangerous for you to do bustiness in Harlem 'cause from now on 125th street is the dead line, get me?"

CHAPTER 19.

The drums were beating in the cabaret orchestra—the jazz battle was on—brassy bugles sounded. The two deadly enemies looked deep into each other's eyes.

"Yeah?" said Steve, drawing it out ominously.

"Yeah," returned Edwards in the same manner.

Steve shifted from one foot to the other. "Well, that's just dandy, Scar," he said, jauntily. "Thanks for the tip-off. Now if you've spoken your piece you can take the air."

Scar didn't move. "I don't care about having a pub. He fight with the likes of you because everybody in this place don't know my business yet, and I don't care to have you stand around and broadcast it."

Edwards' face twisted it to an ugly smile. "There's a lot of things I can broadcast, if I have to."

This was becoming extremely dangerous. Scar must be got out of here before the worst happened. Dolph came down on his right. "You heard what the boss said, didn't you?" he muttered through the side of his mouth.

"You too," ripped out Scar—"the both of you—since you're looking for tips, I'll give you another one. I happen to be the guy who can clean up a few murder mysteries in this town. I suppose you don't know who knocked O'Connell off!" He had thrown all caution to the winds now. The scar on his cheek pulsated faster and burned like the end of a lighted cigar in the darkness—the little beads of sweat became larger and ran down between his eyes. "And who dumped his body up in Harlem so my mob would get blamed for it?" he shouted.

"What are you driving at?" demanded Steve, although he knew very well what Scar meant. The murderer of O'Connell had been one of Steve's slips but he thought it had been well covered up. Now, here it was, shouted at him by this hysterical little second-story rounder. This couldn't go on!

The battle number outside in the darkened pit of the Paradise had reached its climax. Shots began—bang, bang, bang! The battle between the two bosses in the private party-room with its silken canopy had reached its climax too.

"You croaked O'Connell, Steve!" cried Edwards, and as Dolph tried to interfere, grabbing him by the arm, he twisted on him, presenting his back to Steve. "Take your hands off me or I'll bust your face. You guys can't put me out of business!"

Bang! A real shot added its sharp bark to the shots in the orchestra. Steve had jerked his gun from his hip pocket, had pressed it against Scar's back and had fired. Scar pitched forward into Dolph's arms and his natty light hat fell from his head.

"Steve!" cried the astonished Dolph—"What have you done?"

Steve put his gun away, remaining quite cool. "Get hold of him under the arms—quick!" he ordered. "Walk him out of here."

To the military accompaniment of the last shots and trumpets of the battle number, they walked the dying man toward the alley door, Steve pausing to pick up Scar's hat and placed it on the wobbly head. He opened the door and the cold draught, smelling of garbage, rushed in.

And luck would have it, just as Crandall was about to close the door behind him, Roy Lane and Bill Moore came running down the dressing room stairs, a youthful flutter in the gay costumes of the first revue number. Over the railing they saw Dolph and Steve with the limp figure between them. "Who's the drunk?" called Roy, continuing down the stairs.

"Just one of the boys we're helping home," returned Steve and closed the door on the warm, brightly-lighted room.

At the top of the stairs, as the door clicked shut, Pearl, the new weenie from uptown, called down to Billie. "Was there a shot?" she asked in a tense voice.

Roy laughed. "That's the hand," he said, and took a few fancy steps.

"Doing the battle number," added Billie, stretching her bare arms over her head.

Pearl turned back to her dressing room. "I'm nervous tonight," she said, still in the same tense voice.

CHAPTER 20.

Through the alley, slowly, Steve and Dolph bore their unwieldy burden, and as they came near the garbage cans, Scar stiffened, emitted a slight groan and died, his whole body falling limp like a sack of bones. A black cat, long and thin, slipped past like a shadow.

"What was that?" breathed Dolph, through his chattering teeth.

"A cat, you fool! Pull yourself together," ordered Steve—"Lift him up to his feet there. Can't you see he's slipped to his knees?"

"You croaked him," muttered Dolph as he hoisted up the body, attempting to get one of the flapping arms around his neck.

"Shut up!" whispered Steve. "What do you think I was doin', playing with him?"

They had reached the place where the alley joined the street. Fortunately, for Crandall, the early spring night was clouded and a slight rain was drizzling down in an obscuring mist. Few people were out in the cold and wet, and the voice of Broadway was muffled, dimly. Steve looked up and down, and across the street, searching dark corners where some of Scar's gang might be lurking, waiting for him to come out, but he saw no one.

A yellow taxi bumped by, spattering mud on the sidewalk; then two men, walking quickly. They glanced up and Steve turned to his ghastly companion and said, kindly, "That's all right—we'll get you home in a few minutes—soon as that taxi comes—Sure—that booze was too much for you, old timer."

One of the men laughed as he looked back and said something to his friend who also laughed. They disappeared.

"Now walk him down the street," said Steven—"Keep his feet on the sidewalk if you can."

"But—but—" Dolph was bewildered.

"Don't ask no questions. Come on, that's all."

They walked the teetering corpse down the street toward Seventh Avenue. Scar's hand, still warm, flopped against Dolph's cheek. The head rolled between the sunken shoulders—the toes of the lifeless shoes scraped up the thin slush from the slimy pavement.

"Keep him on his feet, I tell you," muttered Steve—"and up straight too—he's droppin' down on your side."

"But—but where?"—They had walked half the block—"We ain't goin' to carry him down Seventh Avenue?" breathed Dolph, sweat pouring into his eyes. That ghastly hand, luke-warm, now, was still insidiously brushing his cheek.

"Shut up or I'll—" Another couple, this time a man and a girl, passed them, the man holding an umbrella over his companion. Instantly, Steve began his gruesome monologue—"All right, old man—We'll get a taxi, right away—You'll feel all fine after you get a little sleep—That's it—Come on—Steady, boy, steady!"

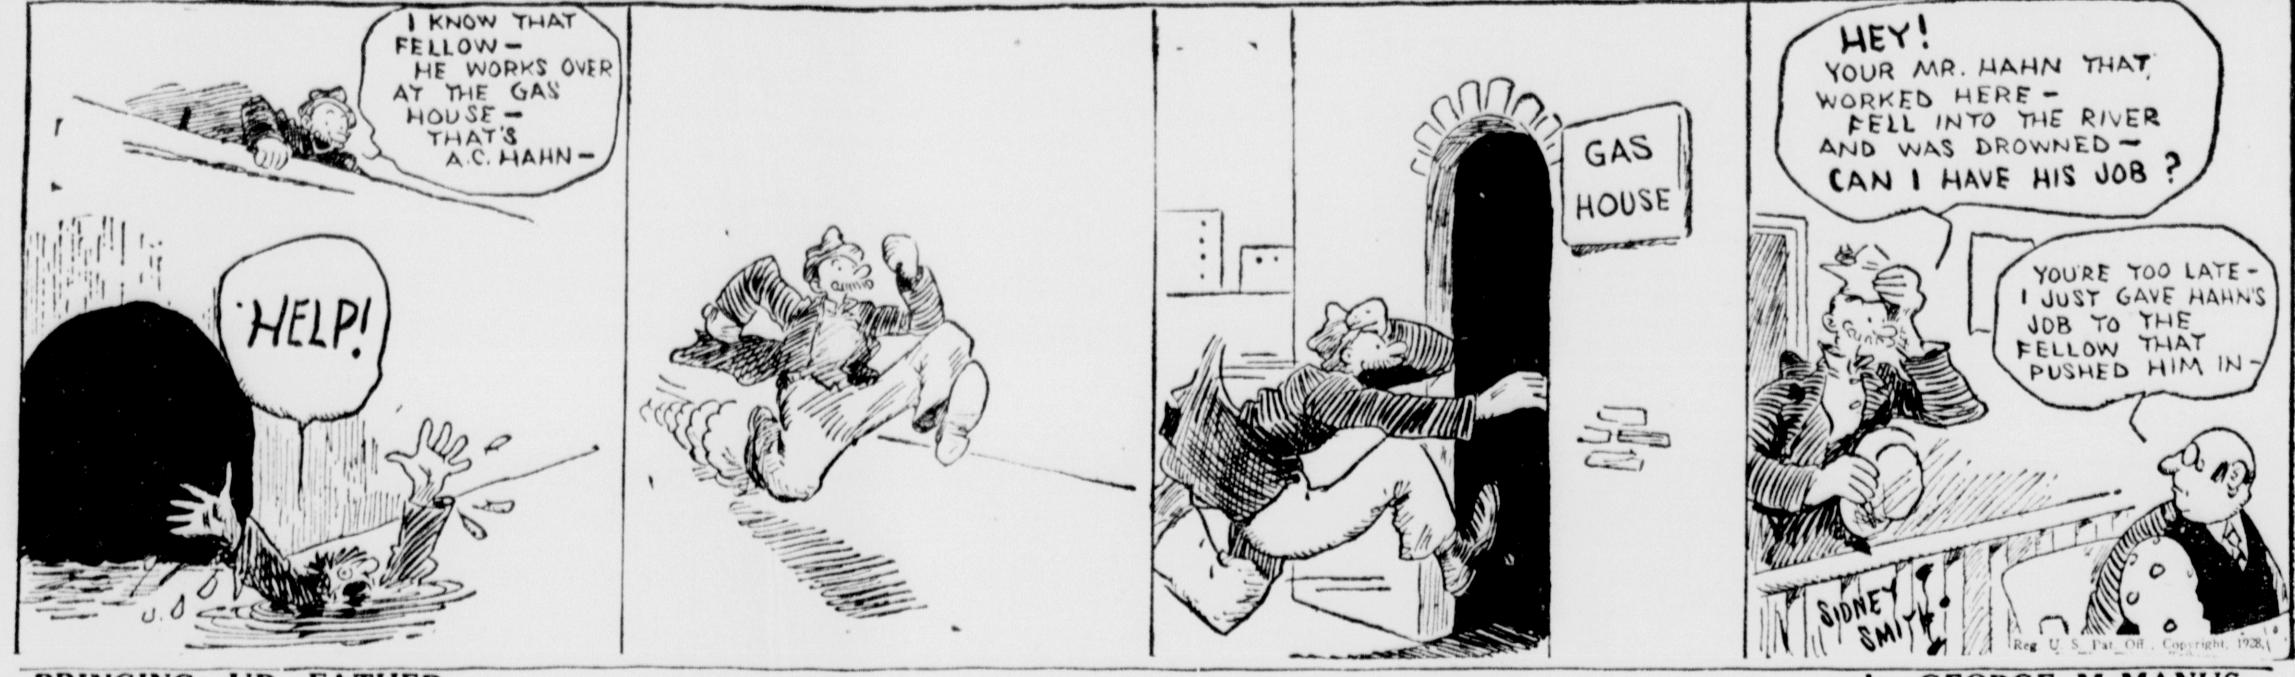

The couple glanced back over their shoulders; the man made a remark and the girl giggled. The two disappeared up the muggy street, the umbrella bobbing like a black balloon.

The corner was reached. Dolph's legs felt as wobbly as the legs of the corpse. His knees were like water. "What are we goin' to do now, Steve?" he whispered, almost frantically. The rain fell a little harder. Pedestrians scurried for shelter. A taxi honked. "Let's take a taxi," Dolph suggested.

JOLLY JESTERS ON CERAMIC BILL BARTHELMESS AT AMERICAN

The Six Jolly Jesters, offering a variety program, will top the bill at the Ceramic theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

They will appear here in conjunction with the William Fox screen production, "Publicity Madness," a non-stop flight on the wings of laughter, starring Lois Moran and Edmund Lowe, of "What Price Glory" fame.

In this clever adventure yarn, adapted by Andrew Bennison from an Anita Loos story, Lowe is cast as an enterprising, breezy soap salesman, with big ideas and but little cash-on-hand background. It is one of those things in which all of his natural humor and ability to characterize is called forth.

"I like this type of role," Lowe answered when asked about the part. "A chap like Pete King is so real and so life-like he just grows on a person as the story progresses."

Lowe, before entering pictures, was a favorite on Broadway and on the Los Angeles stage. His early training in theatricals was obtained in school plays at Santa Clara university, where he studied to be a lawyer. Most of his earlier successes in pictures were sophisticated characters, but since his phenomenal success as Sergeant Quirt in "What Price Glory," he has changed his screen character, entirely, and very successfully.

Nearly $5,000,000 was paid to pilots for guiding boats at the ports of the United Kingdom during the past year.

Japan will broadcast to steamers at sea and the public in general all news of infectious diseases breaking out anywhere in the country.

Attendance at a recent hotel and restaurant owners' fair in Cologne, Germany, totaled 65,000, or twice that of the one held a year before.
